

Assistant Professor

University Tenure Line

Division of Pediatric Cardiology, Department of Pediatrics

The Division of Pediatric Cardiology in the Department of Pediatrics at Stanford University seeks to recruit a scientist or physician-scientist with a research focus within the field of pediatric cardiovascular disease to join the Division and Department as an Assistant Professor in the University Tenure Line.

The successful applicant must have a MD, PhD, or MD and PhD degrees, or their equivalent. Candidates should have research training and experience in either the field of congenital (structural) or acquired cardiovascular diseases. He/she will have demonstrated outstanding, or the promise of outstanding, laboratory-based and/or patient-based investigative experience studying some aspect of cardiovascular diseases affecting the pediatric population. Preference will be given to candidates who have acquired extramural, peer-reviewed, national research funding. He/she will be expected to establish, or will already have established, a high-quality, independent research program and have a strong track record of, or potential for, outstanding mentorship and teaching.

The academic appointment will be at the Assistant Professor rank in the University Tenure Line. The predominant criterion for appointment in the University Tenure Line is a major commitment to research and teaching.

Applications will be reviewed beginning July 2018 and accepted until the position is filled.

Stanford University is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty. It welcomes nominations of and applications from women, members of minority groups, protected veterans, and individuals with disabilities, as well as from others who would bring additional dimensions to the university's research, teaching and clinical missions.
