

The AuthorChoice option (<http://www.the-aps.org/mm/Publications/Info-For-Authors/Open-Access>) is the service by which your article may be published as “open access” in an APS journal, providing perpetual free and open access to all readers. AuthorChoice articles remain under APS copyright, but are subject to exemptions of a Creative Commons “CC-BY” license (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>). The CC-BY license allows anyone to re-use or distribute the article in any form (without the need for explicit consent from the copyright holder) under the condition that the original APS article is cited.

After processing your AuthorChoice payment, your article will be updated to ensure that it is freely available in the online APS Journals without need for subscription access. Also, APS deposits all AuthorChoice articles into PubMed Central (PMC) (<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/>) on behalf of the author. Full payment is required ($2,000 for research articles; $3,000 for reviews) before the AuthorChoice service is applied to your article. If using an institutional purchase order, include a copy with this form.

Complete this form and send to APS, as a PDF file (saved or scanned) to the Supervisor of the journal in which your article will appear, with a subject line containing your author name and the manuscript number.
