The College of Arts and Sciences at Seattle University invites applications for a three- year, full- time non-tenure track Instructor, Exercise Physiology position as Director, Clinical Graduate Studies with the Kinesiology Department. Successful applicants will begin September 1, 2020.

The Kinesiology Department is a small, interdisciplinary group providing a BS in Exercise Science and a MS in Kinesiology. The preferred candidate will complement existing faculty by having expertise/interest in the applications of exercise physiology, particularly with regards to cardiovascular and/or respiratory systems and exercise prescription across diverse populations. Teaching responsibilities include undergraduate and graduate curricula in areas of exercise physiology, research-directed enquiry, and graduate capstone courses. As Director, Clinical Graduate Studies, the preferred candidate will also be responsible for connecting with relevant external stakeholders and coordinating practical experiences for our graduate students in the clinical track of our program. The Director will be knowledgeable in the certification requirements for American College of Sports Medicine Clinical Exercise Physiology and ensure that our clinical students are best positioned for success on the examination. Some student research supervision may be available, where applicable.

Required qualifications include a terminal degree in kinesiology, exercise science, or related field; master’s degree in cardiorespiratory physiology may also be considered. The successful candidate must demonstrate effective instruction in the area of exercise physiology, an ability to communicate effectively with relevant external stakeholders, strong organizational skills, and workplace collegiality. Previous teaching experience and current or past ACSM Clinical Exercise Physiology certification are preferred.

Founded in 1891, Seattle University is a Jesuit Catholic university located on a beautiful campus of more than 50 acres in the dynamic heart of Seattle. Our diverse and driven population is made up of more than 7,200 students enrolled in undergraduate and graduate programs within eight schools and colleges. Seattle University is an equal opportunity employer.

In support of its pursuit of academic and scholarly excellence, Seattle University is committed to creating a diverse community of students, faculty and staff that is dedicated to the fundamental principles of equal opportunity and treatment in education and employment regardless of age, color, disability, gender identity, national origin, political ideology, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation, or veteran status. The university encourages applications from, and nominations of, individuals who will further enrich the diversity of our educational community.

Submit applications through https://www.seattleu.edu/careers/ including a cover letter, CV, and contact information for a minimum of 3 references. The cover letter should be a maximum of 2 pages and include examples of how your teaching and previous experience has/will align with the mission and values of Seattle University. Applications will close February 28, 2020. Inquiries concerning the position may be emailed to Dr Sarah Shultz, Chair, Kinesiology Department, shultzsarah@seattleu.edu.